SERMONETTE

- "In the world, yet not of this world" -

"The world is like an ocean. We cannot live without water, it is true, but it is also true that we cannot live if we allow the water to engulf us, for there is life in water and also death. If we make use of water we find that there is life in it, but if we are drowned we find death."

"In this world we are like little boats. The place for a boat is on a river or on the sea. But this does not mean that the water must be in the boat. For if it is in the boat, the boat will become useless. It would fill with water, sink beneath the waves, and whoever was in it would be drowned. The boat must be in the water, but the water must not be in the boat."

In these parables, Sadhu Sundar Singh, a consecrated Hindu Christian, illustrates the truth about our Christian attitude toward the world. If we Christians become too much of the world we will soon become corrupt and be drowned. We Christians are neither ascetic nor worldly people but people who live the life of Christ in Him and live among fellowmen and women as Jesus did in this world.

GREETINGS from ASBURY

Dear Friends:

I look back to my short stay in Poston with gratitude for many things. In the first place, it was so good to see so many of you once again, and to fellowship with you. It was great to witness your faithfulness and genuine interest for the Church and for Christ. I'm sure such devotion and loyalty have been rewarded in blessings to you from God.

It was with mingled feeling that I made my departure from your midst. It is difficult to place one's finger on any particular one, but together with a sense of regret because of my many failures and shortcomings, because of opportunities lost, was a feeling of thankfulness for the privilege that was mine in working with you. It was very good of you to listen so attentively, work so hard, pitch in and cooperate so willingly when asked to help. It was so noble on your part to play the piano, teach S.S., help out in the D.V.B.S., come out faithfully to the many meetings, pass out song books, work in the office and through those and many other ways express a spirit of Christian love and devotion. May God bless each one of you. You certainly deserve it.

...Looking about us, we are sometimes depressed and discouraged by the crass materialism of the day. But thinking of other lives living victoriously, triumphant over circumstances and conditions, their spirits soaring out and reveling in the quietness and beauty of God, and of noble examples of other beautiful characters--surely such evidences are gratifying during these days. May such joy and such peace be yours--because was it not God that said "Let there be Light!" I'm praying that the Light might shine in your hearts unto a more perfect day.

Again thank you for everything! May the blessings of God be yours.
